A FINE FUND.

Over a Quarter of a Million Donated—John Davis and George E. Leitchman Give $50,000 Each—Other Contributors—Needs of the Institution—Proposed Addition.
Very quietly, but none the less surely and satisfactorily, the appeal of the Board of Trustees of Washington University for the establishment of additional professorships has been rewarded, with numerous donations. Within the two months just closed a total of $255,000 has been turned over for the use of the University. Of this sum between $50,000 and $60,000 is in improved St. Louis real estate. The rest is in bonds, stocks and notes. The $255,000 is divided as follows:
Manual Training School.....$ 50,000
Art School.....47,500
Theological School.....25,000
General Fund.....132,500
MR. GEORGE E. LEITCHMAN, chairman of the Board of Trustees, was seen to-day about the endowment.
"Large and encouraging as the total is," he said, "we need a great deal more. Our actual present needs demand anywhere $300,000, and we ought to get $500,000 before 1888."
"Have you in mind any special endowments?"
"Yes, the department of mining and metallurgy, which is being so ably conducted by Prof. Potter, and is developing a class of mining engineers who are attracting attention to that department from all parts of the country, we feel should have its field widened. This could be done by the establishment of a self-supporting fund, its effects are shown most prominently in the architecture of the city, but its influence is felt in every department of the city's industrial life."
"I have heard of the time when we can have a chair of German literature and language, to be held by a scholar whose rank will be second to none in the country."
"No, I cannot say it is; but we are confident that when our generous German citizens wake up to the value of such a chair, we will not want the necessary funds."
"Have you any other professorships in contemplation?"
"The one we have our hearts set on is that of political economy. In the past few years the study of political economy has grown in importance on account of the general discussion of capital and labor, and the study of it can be no more valuable addition to our departments than that chair. We expect to see the chair of political economy in St. Louis, but it is incumbent upon us to see that the great educational institution of St. Louis should keep even pace with the city's progress in other lines of action."
"Can you give the names or amounts of the subscriptions?"
"At this time Mr. Leitchman pulled his head within his shell and closed down the lid, causing a deep silence, in which the Post-Dispatch reporter, tip-toeing, was able to hear the unwillingness to talk on the subject of the donors was soon understood when the street was reached. The report was that the long in finding a gentleman who knew enough to give about the endowment fund. From him it was learned that the two largest subscriptions were $50,000 each, given by Messrs. John Davis and George E. Leitchman. Judge Madill gave a large contribution to the Law School, and Mr. J. G. Chapman did the same for the School of Theology. The Manual Training School has been remembered liberally by Messrs. Samuel Cupples, W. L. Huse and W. E. Brown. Other subscriptions have come from Messrs. Daniel Cullin, Henry Hirsch, Carlos S. Greely, Wm. H. Hargrave, Thos. E. Tuit, Chas. Parsons and others. It is understood that there are a dozen other donors who are considering the appeal of the Board quite seriously, and upon them the Board depends for the swelling of the endowment to the desired figure."

THE GRAND ENCAMPMENT.

How the President Was Invited—Looking for Quarters—Gossip.
S. W. Sanders Post, No. 283 of Arcolia, Ill., has made application for tents for thirty men during the Grand Encampment.
J. M. Tuttle, Commander of the Department of Iowa, accompanied by several of his staff, is in the city looking for headquarters.
H. O. Russell, Commander of the Department of Nebraska, will arrive in the city this evening to look for department headquarters.
THE MUSIC COMMITTEE.
This morning members of the Grand Army of the Republic have provided a controversy concerning the President's coming and the proper way to receive him. There has been an impression in certain circles that the President would be invited to the city in September by the Grand Army of the Republic. Such is not the case. It has been stated repeatedly in these columns that the original invitation to the President was prepared by a committee of three at the request of a committee known as the General Executive Committee of the National Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, composed of Grand Army men, ex-Confederates and other citizens. It is a committee, not of the Grand Army, but to receive the Grand Army at the time of the Encampment. It is the chairman of this committee, and he has worked hard to make the attendance upon the encampment large and to persuade the President to come here as the guest of the city to witness and review the grand parade. It was the intention of members of this committee to make a proposition at the next meeting to turn over the reception and entertainment of the President to a special committee to be appointed by the Grand Army. This action will probably be taken on Saturday next. The President has never been requested to visit the city by the Grand Army. A proposition was made to the Executive Committee to ask Gen. Fairchild, Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army, to invite him, but the question was permanently shelved on an announcement that it had not been customary in the past for the Grand Army to pursue this course.

WAR AMONG THE CHOCTAWS.

A Camp of Whites and Half-Breeds Attacked on the Arkansas Border.
By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.
LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 2.—Advice from "Doakville," Choctaw Nation, says that a number of whites and half-breeds who were leaving their Nation for Arkansas, were attacked while in camp on the border. The assailants charged on the refugees, mortally wounding two men and then rode away. Most of the campers fled to the nearest town, escaping. Among the fugitives was a notorious murderer, who, it is believed, caused the attack.

Nothing Done.

There was nothing accomplished in the Criminal Court to-day. The attorney of Thomas Mallory agreed to waive the forty-eight hours' time allowed him to challenge jurors, but after the selection of a panel was commenced he has already been seen and the officers to take the time. This would bring the case up for trial Saturday, and it was determined to lay it over until next week.

City Appeal Day.

This was city appeal day in the Court of Criminal Correction and Judge Noonan had quite a heavy docket.
Emmett Sutton had a preliminary hearing on a charge of breaking into the house of Burly Pitts, 2643 Scott avenue, and stealing silver valued at $25. He was convicted and held for the Grand Jury in $1,000 bond to answer to a charge of burglary and larceny.
John Cochran and Mike Noonan, charged with assault and battery, and Eliza Cooper charged with petit larceny, were tried and discharged.
The cases of J. R. Timmerman, charged with assault and battery, and Frank Larkin, charged with petit larceny, were dismissed for want of prosecution.
A police process was entered in the city appeal case of Christ Kilmer.

Will Go to the Cave.

The committee in charge of the Commercial Travelers' Convention, which will be held here during this month, have suggested that as a wind-up to the affair the travelers be given a grand night at Uhlir's Cave. That the convention will be held at this time is warranted by the manner in which the funds are coming in. All that is now required to complete the arrangements is a report of the Finance Committee to the Executive Committee that the funds will guarantee the amusement. Mr. Short has already been seen and the officers to take the time. This would bring the case up for trial Saturday, and it was determined to lay it over until next week.

A BIG ATTENDANCE.

The International Sunday-School Convention in Session at Chicago.

CHICAGO, June 3.—The hall was well filled this morning when President Reynolds of the International Sunday-School Convention opened the session by a call to order. At the conclusion of devotional exercises the day's business was opened by a resolution to substitute "the Sabbath" for "Sunday," which was referred to the Executive Committee. A Kansas delegate offered a resolution urging a more global celebration of Christmas. Another Kansas delegate wanted the convention to put itself on record on the temperance question. After routing business and having a brief dispatch of Mr. Jacobs of Chicago said "Better Organization" would be discussed in ten minutes' speech, and that the H. W. Bailey of Kentucky would speak next. Mr. Bailey said within three months ten counties had been brought into the Kent Sunday-school, and within thirty days of county in Kentucky would be organized. Rev. J. E. Gilbert, D. D., of Indiana, the result of organized Sunday-school in his State. He said he had canvassed a school district, going from house to house.

MRS. LIVINGSTON WOULD NOT COME.

Therefore the "Mashing" Cases Against Ike. Treadway Were Dismissed.

This morning in the Court of Criminal Justice, Judge John H. Butler entered a decision in the two city appeal cases against Isaac Treadway, the veteran gambler, was fined $35 in one case and $10 in another. Judge Cady for annoying Mrs. Livingston and taking $10 from her by attempting to "mash" her. In taking this action Mr. B. B. Livingston into court any more, she also refused to come. In view of this fact the city was unable to do anything in the matter and was compelled to drop the cases.

THURSDAY, JUNE 2, 1897.

The indications for twenty-four hours, commencing at 3 p. m. to-day, for Missouri are: Fair weather; stationary temperature; southerly winds.

It is charitable to suppose that JOHN SHERMAN is insane.

A CORRESPONDENT calls on us to abate the smoke nuisance. It has been abated in other cities.

MINISTER MANNING has been removed from the Presidency of the American Hospital Association in Mexico.

NO PARISIEN Boulanger hates the Prussians as fiercely as JOHN SHERMAN hates his fellow-citizens of the Democratic party.

It is the best interests of St. Louis demand the retirement of Gen. GRIER from the Grand Army Committee, Gen. GRIER should retire.

OUR country cousins who may be in St. Louis Saturday week will have an opportunity of witnessing the biggest balloon ascension of the century.

THE London Times, undismayed by the exposure of its Parnell letter forgery, has gone on and discovered a dynamite plot. The Times is a bloody shirt organ worthy of JOHN SHERMAN.

It is said that the way in which the name "BOU-LAN-GER" is shouted by the mobs in Paris gives it the sound of the Harvard yell of "Rah-Rah-Rah." This is indeed an unhappy way for Paris.

FROM his lofty elevation as Chairman of the Committee of Arrangements of the Grand Army reunion, Mr. D. P. GRIER is doing as much as lies in his power to interfere with the success of the reunion.

THE attempt to elect HANCOCK in 1896 on the cry that TILDEN was counted out by fraud in 1876, did not win. Mr. SHERMAN's attempt to elect himself on the cry that BLAINE was robbed of the Presidency in 1884 is similarly illogical. That town line does not reach him.

THE laying of the corner-stone of the new Mercantile Library building yesterday was merely one incident in the history of the intellectual growth of St. Louis. Within the past sixty days the St. Louis benefactors of Washington University have given a quarter of a million dollars for the further endowment of that institution.

WHAT does the Republican mean by saying, with reference to the Grand Army invitation and the Citizens' invitation, that the President "has not accepted either invitation?" The files of the Republican should certainly contain a report of the President's acceptance of the invitation given to him in person ten days ago by the delegation from St. Louis and which invitation included the Grand Army invitation in its scope.

IF the extra session of the Missouri Legislature is prolonged to no other end but the publication of voluminous attacks by railroad attorneys on the Constitution of the State, Mr. GOULD will have a right to say to the President of the Pennsylvania railroad: "Sir—I rule a Democratic provision called the State of Missouri, of which 'the Legislature is as servile in its obedience to my attorneys and whippers-in as any Pennsylvania Legislature ever was to your corporation.'"

WHEN BLAINE made his angry Augusta speech after the election in 1884, Mr. SHERMAN had nothing to say about fraud, murder and bulldozing in the election. He did not rush to the rescue of the party then as he did in 1876. On the contrary, he accepted Mr. BLAINE's defeat without a murmur. In taking up that cry now, does he mean to intimate that he will not submit as BLAINE did, and that if he is the Republican nominee in 1898 we will have another fight over the returns like that of 1876?

THE Supreme Court has not decided that a corporation chartered by a State and engaged in interstate transportation cannot be taxed by the State. The decision goes no further than denying the power of the State to levy a tax which will amount to a discrimination against interstate commerce. A State tax on the gross receipts of a steamboat company engaged in interstate commerce under a Pennsylvania charter was pronounced a tax discriminating against interstate commerce, and therefore unconstitutional. But the Court intimated that a tax on common carriers so levied as not to involve such a discrimination, was within the scope of State power. The more clearly the restrictions upon State control over interstate commerce are defined the more forcibly is presented the necessity for a complete code of Federal laws regulating interstate transportation.

PARLIAMENTARY RESPONSIBILITY.

The present situation in France is fraught with sinister possibilities to which our system, with all of its disadvantages and drawbacks, is not exposed. When we see a ministry turned out by an adverse vote of the people's immediate representatives and the chief executive obliged either to form a new ministry in harmony with the popular branch of the Legislature, or to submit the questions at issue directly to the people by sending their representatives back to the people for re-election, as in England or France, we are apt to concede that this looks more democratic than the system under which our President may retain an unpopular Cabinet and for four years exert the whole moral influence of the Administration against the policies supported by a majority of the House or of the entire Congress.

But on the other hand we have no House of Lords, no life Senators, no branch of the Legislature independent of the popular will and yet with power to obstruct the will of the House for any great length of time. The latter body cannot be dissolved. The regular election of its members every two years and the re-election of one-third of the Senate every two years insure a regular, continuous and sufficiently frequent reference of all pending questions to the ballot-box. Aside from the limited veto power by which the President can defeat any legislation enacted by less than a two-thirds vote, the responsibility for legislation rests wholly on the men elected as legislators, and the responsibility for the enforcement of the laws rests wholly on the executive, who also acts under the responsibility of an election of President by the people every four years.

Under this system we have a stability which operates as a sufficient check upon the influence of sudden popular excitements and frenzies, but a stability which has never yet proved a permanent obstacle to the operation of the settled judgment and will of the people. If the English system of parliamentary responsibility works practically to a slower but ultimate obedience to the will of the people it does so by the force of circumstances outside of the Constitution, and by the consent of a House of Lords wielding an hereditary veto power independent of any appeal to the ballot-box. As to the French imitation of the English system of mingling executive and legislative responsibility, it has already produced several crises of a dangerous character, and has developed neither stability with ultimate popular acquiescence, on the one hand, nor a prompter deference than is paid by our Government to the popular will. The resignation of McMAHON alone prevented a revolution as the result of the stand taken by the President and Senate against the Gambetta influence, and the stand now taken by the Senate and President GRIER against the policy represented by CLEMENCEAU and BOULANGER seems tending to a situation suggestive of dangerous outbreaks in Paris, revolutions and coups d'etat. The storm may blow over without wrecking anything, but we have reason to congratulate ourselves that our system is free from the frictions which have produced the impending danger in France.

SHERMAN'S Springfield speech was modeled after OLIVER P. MORTON's fierce efforts to keep alive the madness of battle after the war ended. It is an appeal not to truth or reason, but to partisan prejudice and fanaticism; to the groundings of party and their bitterest memories and passions. It is the attempt of a cold-blooded and callous but cunning demagogue to steal some of Mr. BLAINE's partisan magnetism and to appropriate all of Mr. BLAINE's stage thunder with the red and blue fire trimmings. Indeed there is a suspicion slowly creeping over the public mind that Mr. SHERMAN's speeches and his campaign are made under Mr. BLAINE's direction. There are as yet no indications of any rivalry between them. The defeats of both SHERMAN and BLAINE in 1876 and 1880, through the divisions of the SHERMAN-BLAINE-CAMERON family alliance, and the party defeat of 1884 were surely enough to reunite the family once more. A Sherman administration dominated by BLAINE and CAMERON might easily pave the way for BLAINE in 1892, and the defeat of SHERMAN by CLEMENCEAU in 1888 could be borne by Mr. BLAINE with far more fortitude than a second defeat of Mr. BLAINE himself as the Republican nominee.

What the Law Is For.

A corporation organ publishes reports of the effects of the interstate commerce act upon the revenue of railroads as measuring its success or failure. It does not seem to occur to some people that the object of the law was to secure fair play to all shippers and equal rights to all the people—not to put any one family in a scale of the watered stock and continue artificial props to toppling enterprises.

The Financial Credit of St. Louis.

The financial credit of the City of St. Louis is well attested by the fact that she is refunding municipal securities which fall due this year to the amount of $4,000,000 at 98 per cent. Enough subscriptions have already been received, though the invitation for bids was given at a comparatively short time ago, to make sure of the successful placing of the bonds. St. Louis has never defaulted, and her credit is as good as gold. There is nothing that it pays either a State or a city better to do than to pay its debts. The most expensive way to get rid of a debt is to repudiate it. There is a very valuable moral here for Virginia.

LAND FOR THE LANDLESS.

The proclamation of Secretary Lamar giving the land-grant railroads until June 25 to show cause why certain land parcels shall not be opened to settlement by the public will, is being received in operation by people yet thirty millions of acres, as large as the State of Pennsylvania, to sale and occupation. This, taken in connection with the allotment in severalty law passed by the last Congress, which, it is claimed, will add 130,000,000 acres more to the public domain, should furnish homes for a good many million of people yet.

One hundred and fifty million acres is an area more than five times as large as Pennsylvania. In addition to this there is still a vast area fraudulently occupied by cattle corporations that should be reclaimed and restored to the public. If the good work begun by the present administration in opening lands to the landless for a good while yet in spite of the wasteful lavishness of past Congresses in giving away the public domain.

Pennsylvania Labor Oppressors.

From the Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

The reports from Hazleton, Pa., where the eviction of coal-miners raised so much stir, show that the mining companies pay no attention to the law of 1884, ordering the payment of employees in cash and forbidding the deduction of bills of any sort. They operate the company store system, and add to it the employment of a company doctor, who is paid an annual salary, and for whose services miners with families are charged 75 cents a month, and the single men 50 cents, whether they call for the services of the physician or not. With so many wrongs, it makes a pity little sum to add to the profits on coal. One man and his son who worked a month for Wenzel & Co., the evicting landlords, had a credit of $3.21 at the end of it. The store bill for this poor miner's family was $4.15, a sum which will keep an ordinary family in a scale of comfort never imagined about a mountain colliery.

HOW THE PRESIDENT SPENT AN IDLE DAY IN THE ADIRONDACKS.

DAVE CROOK'S YARN ABOUT AN INTERESTING EVENING—A Refreshing Sleep and a Late Breakfast—Cribbage and Fishing—The Wedding Anniversary To-day—A Proposed Visit to Gov. Hill.

By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 2.—Dave Crook, the President's guide, remembered Tuesday night, after the newspaper dispatches had been sent, that one of the most interesting events of the day had not been referred to by the President or himself. "While he was paddling up the river," said Crook, "he was in the midst of a group of guides, 'and when he was about half a mile from the hotel, I saw a year-old deer browsing contentedly among the lily pads. We were not moving and the wind was blowing from the deer to us, so the critter did not scent us. It kept on feeding and I spoke to the President quietly to tell him to look up. It was not further away than that lamp-post—pointing to a post 100 feet distant—and its tail was turned over. If we had a gun, and the law had not prevented, we could have shot that deer as easily as a catfish. But there was no gun. So after the President had looked at the deer as long as he liked, I called out that unless he got out of that some feller would be killing him. He kicked up his heels and disappeared in a jiffy.' The President corroborated most of Crook's story, but freed himself of any imputation of desire to break the game law.

The President slept late yesterday morning after his long active day. Before he had appeared each of the guests, except the members of his party, had eaten a portion of the President's catch of brook trout. Mr. Roman had risen from the table at President Cleveland and Col. Lamont came down. Daylight revealed the President's face burned to a brilliant red. Col. Lamont's face was a blaze of glorious vermilion.

A BAD DAY FOR FISHING.

The weather did not favor fishing excursions yesterday, so the guides, released from duty, gathered in their quarters and attracted the stay-at-home fishermen by playing on fiddles and other implements. They talked fish, and the President's preference for using bait instead of flies to catch trout.

It was one thing when the President and Mr. Ward were here," said one of the guides, "and they were out for brook trout. The President was a fisherman, and he was out for brook trout. He had no sooner put one on his hook than he was out for brook trout. He was out for brook trout. He was out for brook trout. He was out for brook trout. He was out for brook
